
Support for Employers

Employers need to be able to find out what support is available to enable them to recruit, manage, retain and train people who have mental health problems.

Mindful Employer is a voluntary charter for employers positive about mental health. Using the Mindful Employer logo demonstrates commitment to support employees with mental health conditions: <http://www.mindfulemployer.net>.

Mental Health First Aid is a national mental health awareness training programme targeted at workplace settings: <http://www.mhfaengland.org.uk>

The Business Link website has information for employers about business support for wellbeing: <http://www.businesslink.gov.uk> > employment and skills > managing people > health at work > health and wellbeing programmes.

Working for Mental Health is a Dept. Health website devoted to employment with an employer portal. It includes a range of useful resources including links to the Shift Line Manager's Guide and related videos and case studies: <http://workingformentalhealth.dh.gov.uk>.

Health, Work and Well-being co-ordinators in each English region promote an understanding of health and well-being issues in small and medium-sized businesses: <http://www.workingforhealth.gov.uk> > choose 'our work' > select from index appearing on the left of the screen.
